- Sufficient stock of organic sultanas currently available

Early blooming in Turkey poses risks for the harvest. We have taken precautions!

The mild winter in Turkey has led to an early bud development on the grapevines. However, the weather remains unpredictable: dropping temperatures, night frosts, and even snow could pose a significant threat to the harvest. Forecasts indicate lower yields.

We offer a secure alternative! Our warehouses are well stocked with high-quality goods from last season's harvest in Uzbekistan – reliable and available in sufficient quantities.

Secure your supply now – quality you can count on!

In our range you will find:
