

Welcome aboard our Delphic Organic Newsletter. We report on the latest news from the organic food industry, our raw material supply, projects in source countries, and much more.

Supply shortages partly lifted!

After the last two years saw shortages of products due to the current situation causing issues with delivery terms, the situation is now easing. Since we can rely on long lead times and existing order deadlines, we are pleased to say that we have plenty of stock of the following items:

Organic Cashewkernels

different varieties

Origin: different countries

Strengthening sales.

---

Our most recent addition is Felix Zaremba, a sales representative with previous professional experience. Combined with the rest of our team, he complements our already strong staff. He's our contact person for outside the EU particularly for external relationships. We're excited to welcome our new team player.

Here's some more about Felix so you can get to know him a bit better:

What's on your "bucket list"?

A road trip through the USA.

What's your favourite sport?

I've played football for as long as I can remember, and I'll continue to do so for as long as my body allows.

Anything else we should know about you?

I'm always in a good mood, I love cooking.

Why did you apply to work with us?

I've been involved with nutrition for a long time, and I'm really interested in moving into this area in a professional capacity. I place a lot of value on fair, kind treatment – whether that's with clients, suppliers or at lunch with colleagues. I immediately felt like I fit in here. Plus I was impressed that employees from purchasing and quality assurance visit suppliers to check out the social and qualitative conditions on site.

Participation in Biofach 2022 in July

BIOFACH2022
into organic

Everything is changing in these difficult times – even long-established fair schedules. As you may already know, the dates for the world's largest leading trade fair for organic products, Biofach in Nuremberg, has been postponed due to current events this year. The following dates were set in agreement with exhibitors: 26th – 29th July, 2022.

You'll find us in the usual place: Hall 7, Stand 142.

We look forward to meeting you in person.
